

James Davis

Inaugural Chairman of the newly formed Patient Advisory Committee of the iCMLf

Dr. Davis is the former Executive Vice President, General Counsel and Secretary of Human Genome Sciences, Inc., a biopharmaceutical company that pioneered new treatments in the areas of auto-immune diseases, cancer and bioterrorism. His professional background has focused on the intersection of science, business and law, particularly in issues related to the commercialization of new technologies. Dr. Davis has consulted with biotechnology and other companies in the area of crisis management and the launch of new technologies.

Jim Davis has been a partner in the Washington, D.C. office of a major New York law firm; head of research and development for an agricultural biotechnology company; and a Special Assistant at the Environmental Protection Agency, where he focused on biotechnology regulation. He currently serves on the board of the Mirasol Foundation, which is committed to helping those in need in Palm Beach County and surrounding communities through fundraising activities, direct giving, and community service programs; he also serves as a director of the Mirasol Club and Association.

Jim is a CML patient and clinical trial participant. He has served in several capacities with Leukemia Lymphoma Society in the USA, including chair and vice-chair of the board of directors, chair of the mission oversight committee, and as a member of the Therapy Acceleration Program medical & scientific affairs and executive committees. Davis has also served for two years as the co-chair of the National Capital Area chapter's annual Leukemia Ball, helping to raise approximately $6 million.
